DEFINITIONS

Infectious disease

Disorders that are caused by organisms, usually microscopic in size, such as bacteria, viruses, fungi, or parasites that are passed, directly or indirectly, from one person to another.

Rule of Two

A safeguarding practice that requires the presence of at least two staff members when providing toileting or personal care support to a student.

Staff providing toileting support

Board employees who have received appropriate training and are assigned the responsibility of assisting students with toileting and/or continence care as part of their regular duties. These staff members may include Educational Assistants (EA), Early Childhood Educators (ECE), or other personnel as designated by the Principal.

Student who requires toileting support

A student who, due to developmental, physical, medical, or other identified exceptional needs, requires assistance from trained school staff to safely, hygienically, and respectfully manage toileting or continence care during the school day. This support may include scheduled toileting routines, diapering, physical assistance, adaptive equipment, or direct assistance.

Toilet trained

A student is considered toilet trained when they can recognize the need to use the toilet and independently, or with minimal assistance, complete basic toileting tasks—such as using the toilet, managing clothing, and washing hands.
